THE ENROLLMENT EXPLOSION

By BRINSON WILLIAMS

SCREAM GIRLS:

It may save your life

edited by—E. Rose League

EDITOR'S NOTE: In view of the recent events which have occurred not only on our campus but on other college campuses here in Nashville as well, the Meter staff would like to bring the following article to the attention of the student body, especially the young ladies. Read and heed girls it may help save your life. (This article was taken from The Los Angeles Times for August 9-10.)

The three girls tooled merrily along the freeway, and when two men in another car honked and waved, they waved back. Friendly Los Angeles!

They were in for an unpleasant surprise, however, when they drove off the freeway and into a shopping center parking lot, because the men followed them. One pulled a gun, the girls were hustled into the other car, and they were taken to a house in the hills where they were held prisoners for 14 hours.

"The girls may not have meant to encourage these men," says Capt. Hugh I. Brown of the Los Angeles Police department, "But whether they did or not, they managed to attract the men's attention."

Provocation by the victim, however innocent, is a factor in many Los Angeles rape cases. Capt. Brown, who is commander of the police homicide division, also sees all rape reports. And these are on the increase—1965 saw a 28% jump over 1964.

Self-defense for women isn't just a matter of learning karate or judo. Prevention is a far better solution. When a woman behaves provocatively in public, she's asking to be followed and attacked.

Clothing is an important factor. At a busy market recently, for example, a young woman wore thong sandals and a thigh-high tunic, slit to the waist, and bikini pants under that. She had a baby with her, so perhaps she wasn't on the prowl—but is it any wonder that sex criminals find such temptations irresistible?

How can a woman protect herself? "I always thought that if I were accosted by a man and couldn't get away, that I would cooperate in the hope I wouldn't be hurt," says a Los Angeles working girl. "But now, because of the nurses in Chicago . . . I think I would resist."

Capt. Brown agrees with the young woman. "A blood-curdling scream is a woman's best weapon," he said. "Ninety-nine times out of a hundred if she screams and yells and starts to run, the guy will take off and leave her alone."

"I hope I won't get anybody killed by saying that. But, as it turned out in the case of the Chicago nurses, they had nothing to lose by resisting. Maybe somebody would have heard them."

If you can't scream and run, use anything at your disposal to fight with and aim to really hurt because you may have only one chance. Fingernails, the heel of a high-heeled shoe, a heavy flashlight which you carry when walking alone at night, an umbrella all are damaging weapons. With any warning, you can close your right hand

ACHTUNG!

Stop! Stop!! what ever you are doing and dig down into your trunk and come out with those poems, short stories, and essays. It doesn't matter what it is on, rush it to the Meter office on the second floor of the Women's building immediately. If no one is there, slide it under the door. Hurry, hurry, a shocking award awaits everyone who submits.

Housing of students on campus proved to be the greatest problem during registration. Pictured here is one of smaller lines students had to go through to complete registration.

AFROTC Voluntary Program Huge Success

The voluntary AFROTC program at the university got off to a rousing start. A record number of 525 freshmen students enrolled in the General Military course. Captain Edwin C. Handley, Information Officer for AFROTC Detachment 790, announced that the number of freshmen enrolled in the elective program far exceeded Air Force and university expectations.

Established in 1951, the Aerospace Studies Department at the university is now instructing more than 800 Air Force ROTC cadets. Lt. Colonel Hannibal M. Cox, Jr. is Detachment commander. The faculty of the department is made up of carefully selected and well prepared Air Force officers. Instructors are selected from every career field in the Air Force.

The university is offering a new and dynamic Air Force ROTC program. Freshmen and sophomores are pursuing courses that acquaint them with professional opportunities in the Air Force. Junior and Senior cadets are concentrating on Aerospace Power, Astronautics and Space Operations, Leadership and Communication techniques. AFROTC cadets, during their junior and senior years, receive $40 per month.

Enrollment Explosion causes severe housing problems at Tennessee State. Students that were just entering were forced to go as far as sleeping anywhere it was comfortable enough to lay a head, including sleeping on floors and settees in the lounges of various dormitories.

With the tremendous influx of freshmen, despite the fact that new dormitory space recently completed is being utilized, it appears that the upperclassmen are being "choked out." One student said "I've got to at least find a place to lay my head for tonight."

These and other statements like them were being emitted by all students affected by the housing problem.

From what was gathered after asking a few enrollees, such an explosion has never existed of this magnitude before. It has never gotten to the point where "Bol Weaveling," as the expression goes, became quite common place. One can therefore conclude that the housing problem definitely reached an all time high. Additional beds and sleeping facilities were placed in study areas and lounges.

The cause of the havoc seems to assume the following breakdown: The school admitted more freshmen students than normal in comparison to the average enrollment admitted in past years. Something like about 3,000 of them. This required as much of 60% of all available space to be filled. The remaining 40% was quickly occupied by upperclassmen.

After they had arrived the gymnasium and other buildings not designed for housing had to be utilized for these purposes. Special arrangements had to be made for off-campus housing for both male and female students.

YEAR BOOK RATED FIRST CLASS

The 1966 TENNESSEAN received a First Class Honor Rating from Oct. 3, 1966 the Associated Collegiate Press' 1966 All-American Yearbook Critical Service in its Forty-Sixth National Yearbook judging at the University of Minnesota School of Journalism. Awarded September 10, 1966.

TSU GRAD WITH COMBAT FORCES

First Lieutenant John F. Brown, son of Mrs. Lease D. Brown of New Orleans, is now in Vietnam.

Lt. Brown is an aircraft maintenance officer in support of the Pacific Air Forces which provides air offensive and defensive units in Southeast Asia, the Far East and Pacific.

Brown received his B.S. degree here and was commissioned through the Air Force ROTC program.

ON GREEKDOM

By DELBERT MULLINS

Greek letter societies, which are found only in America, have become an increasingly important phase of college life since the founding of the first fraternity in 1776 at the College of William and Mary in Virginia. Today there are three types of such organizations, the professional fraternities and sororities, the honor societies, and the general or social men's fraternities and women's sororities. The latter appealing to students with similar tastes, social background, and ideals and objectives.

While some students and occasionally educators here and there criticize fraternities for their exclusiveness, the Greek letter societies have continued to grow and are accepted as an integral part of student life at an increasing number of colleges and universities.

The Greek organizations were originated and are continued largely on a basis of high ideals and spiritual symbolism. Despite the occasional high jinks of a few members here and there, it is these ideals plus the regular advice and guidance by alumni and faculty members, that "help new members who come in as boys and girls, to become men and women", during their years in college.

The organizations are in reality small businesses which handle considerable funds each year for campus and social activities. During these activities, the Greek learns the use and importance of meetings, rules of parliamentary procedures, and organizational processes.

Some people object to fraternities, stating that they increase college expenses out of proportion to their value. Also because some students may use too much of their time in nonacademic activities and thus get lower grades than they should. It is also true that a few students allow a feeling of self-satisfaction to hamper the full development of their capacities and abilities. Still, let us not forget the many who have enjoyed the present glory that is Greek, while still not forgetting their purpose.

Remember that some students profit greatly by fraternity or sorority life, while others become so enamored of the novelty of such a social organization that they may neglect their academic work, and may be required to withdraw from the college because of unsatisfactory scholarship.

—EDITORIAL—

In past years the Meter has been dubbed with such titles as voice box of the student council, The President's Propaganda sheet and numerous names which I won't mention for fear of a libel suit.

These terms may or may not apply to previous Meter Editors and their publications but as far as this year's publication is concerned, there is only one name and one purpose for the Meter and that purpose is to measure student opinion. We simply mean that this is your paper, this is your means of speaking out.

There are many people on campus who have valid gripes, but never say or do anything about them. There are those whose gripes don't amount to a hill of beans, but they speak out. They are doing more than those who keep their mouths shut and let their problems remain in the dark.

This is your newspaper, you're paying for it use it. If there's something you don't agree with in the paper, let us know. If you're right, we will attempt to rectify the problem. If you're wrong, we will let you know why.

It may not appear true, but the Meter carries a lot of weight on campus, use it, it's for you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LONELY HEARTS

Dear Editor:

There is no reason why I should have to allow my social life to suffer on weekends when I have retired my books.

Sure, I enjoy brew (beer), scotch and milk, grub (food) and extra curricula activities, but I can't afford them myself.

In your next ISH, will you please send me the name of an available young man?

Just a lonely girl,

Dear Lonely:

I've found the perfect man for you—SANTA CLAUS.

A Students Opinion

Housing Situation

By JOSHUA E. LEE

The students as a whole have taken dim view of the housing situation now existing on the campus.

In a recent interview with several students here on campus I found that they overwhelmingly fault the administration for these existing problems. There is a certain disgust in the eyes of homeless upperclassmen who were literally shut out of their previously occupied rooms, and somewhat of a let down to the freshmen who approached the great Tennessee State university's campus only to find a problem never before faced by them in their entire lives.

This leads to a situation where we ask ourselves, is the university ready for the "Big 10"? Is the fame of TSU becoming too big a situation for our administration to accept? Is the university's open door policy about to be come a trap for the upperclassmen?

We are definitely ready for the "Big 10" and the administration could accept the fame that has attracted so many students who are ready to put their lives in the hands of the university to seek a well-rounded education, but the open door policy now existing should be regulated so as not to create a population explosion here on campus.

We cannot believe that the administration was so lax that they did not know how many students to expect, and neither can we believe that they were so behind on the progress reports of the housing construction until they had accepted 500 students who wouldn't have any place to live, except in basements, lobbies, study rooms and laundry rooms. Will the university change its policies, can it change? We hope so.

Notice To Students

The Office of Admissions is now using the computer to determine averages. In order to avoid counting a course more than once, a REPEAT CARD must be secured. Cards may be obtained in the Office of Admissions and Records. A card for each course repeated must be completed. (from the office of the Dean of Faculty)

Student Council President Speaks

Fellow Students:

Welcome back to a new year in the "Tiger's Den"! I sincerely hope that your individual attitudes toward the process of education have been stimulated by your three months of varied summer experiences.

It may be of interest to you to know that the Student Council has been in action since the month of June and is abreast of the issues that will be most immediate for this school year. We are laboring under the theory that exposure to a variety of experiences and people serve to elevate the quality of one's education. In view of this theoretical observation, we are trying to successfully organize a program that will augment the process of education.

This year I want each of you to recognize that we are equally as concerned with destroying the gap in communication between student government and the student body. To alleviate problems of communication, the Student Council has decided to publish a 2 page periodical solely for the purpose of letting you know how the Council is exercising your voice. We also plan to schedule monthly meetings between the Student Council and the Student body to give each student a chance to pen his respective Council representative against the wall. We of the Council are tired of figurehead leadership and have dedicated our program to leadership backed by information and action. I am sure that you will agree that pride in anything whether it be pride in this institution or in your student council is a by product of information and action.

As your president, I am looking forward to being stopped on the campus by many of you to discuss those things that really get right down to the grass roots of business here at Tenn. State. We of the Council promise you that we will be in the know and will represent your causes with progressive leadership. Let it be known, however, that we are more concerned with the serious business of dynamic and level headed leadership than we are with the trivialities of the game of popularity.

Obie L. McKenzie,
Student Body President

PURELY COPESETIC

By EDWARD J. HARRIS

The crowded condition of the university is the talk of Tiger Town. It is almost impossible to get served in the cafeteria in less than an hour. Maybe by Winter quarter (not wishing anybody bad luck) a couple thousand of students will go home.

While we're on the subject of crowds, have you ever thought about how nice crowds would be if they just weren't so nasty. Just go over to the SUB and look at the filth. It is pitiful how these intelligent college students throw their cigarette butts anywhere and just wallow in empty paper cups and gum wrappers.

It could be that the janitorial staff isn't up to par but it is mainly the responsibility of the students.

During registration if anybody should have blown their stack it should have been Mr. Clyde Bond in the housing office. But did he? No. For this reason alone he should be awarded the "Copesetic Medal of Valor"

We think that the University Councilors, and the entire university staff should be commended for preventing what could have been a disaster.

I must be losing my mind. I just got through spending the dullest hour of my life in the wrong Political Science class.

PRESS CLUB

A Press club is being organized. Its membership will be composed of students interested in journalism, members of THE METER and THE TENNESSEAN staffs. Watch for announcements later.

BLACK POWER!

Everybody's talking about BLACK POWER. What's to it? How about dropping me a line stating your views on this timely subject.

SOB STORIES ANYONE?

A freshman came to the METER office with a problem: "My trunk was three weeks late getting here and when I opened it, I found out that it was my sister's trunk. My sister left for Europe the same day I left TSU. Now I have a trunk full of girl's clothes and my clothes are in Europe". I'll bet Paul can't come up with a story better than that.

ENTERTAINMENT

Wiggins Cuts New Slide

Another recording star is within our midst. Percy Wiggins, a senior Speech and Drama major from Memphis, Tennessee has recently cut a record on the R.C.A. label titled "The Work of a Woman".

Another campus group, The Spidells of the "Find out What's Happening" fame backed up Percy on the flip-side "It Didn't Take Much".

Wiggins began singing at the age of six. While in high school he was student director of the Teen Town singers on radio station WDIA in Memphis. He turned professional during his first year of college singing in local night clubs. "All of my life I have thought of being a professional entertainer." It is ironical that I am now singing on the label as my idol—the late Sam Cooke".

Percy's brother, Spencer, is also a recording artist in Memphis who has a fast rising disk "Take Me (Just As I Am)" on the Gold Wax Label.

When ask of his opinion of the English trend Percy stated, "the reason for the popularity of the English groups is mainly because of a gimmick—long hair, accents and Mod clothes." "Personally I like the Beatles. I began to like them after my overseas tour with the Players guild sponsored by the USO and the Department of defense."

On campus, Percy holds membership in Phi Mu Alpha sinfonia, Theta Alpha Phi, the Men's Glee club, and the Players guild. His hobbies are singing (naturally), bowling, basketball, swimming and playing cards.

After graduation, Percy plans to pursue the role of a rythmn and blues singer and if not successful he will try speech therapy.

Presently he is being featured at Club Stealaway.

Tiger Town

McGraw-Hill Book Company, 330 West 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10036 (212)-971-2485 or 3493

One rebel's battle to live and remain man is the there of MOTT THE HOOPER, a first novel by Willard Manus, to be published by McGraw-Hill on October 25. The hero of this explosively funny, anti-establishment comic novel is Norman Mott—a card-playing, wisecracking figure of Rabelasian proportions. He's a clown but he's also a fighter, a man who does battle with formidable opponents, ranging from his draft board to a famed—and fraudulent—evangelist heading a million-dollar crusade to "free" the people behind the Iron Curtain.

Mott is an unforgettable character because he's an original, a unique human being with a voice and a vision all his own. Unlike so many recent heroes of American comic fiction, he is not alienated from life. He is not afraid of it. He loves it. His struggle is not to live decently, but to live manfully.

In the course of his struggle, Mott becomes involved with a bizarre and hilarious cast of characters.

Willard Manus is 36 years old and was born and raised in the Bronx. With his wife and two children, he now lives on a Greek island and is working on another novel.

FASHION HI-LITES

By CATHERINE BAILEY

Fashion will prove to be delightful this fall. To confuse men, more women fashion will be more fickle than usual—Thanks to Paris.

Take hemlines, the V.I.P.'s says Jacques Heim will drop coat lengths to below the knees with dresses only a fraction higher. Chanel will cover knees in her 1930 manner, and Balengiaga, regarded as king of Paris fashions, stamped his approval of longer hemlines. On the other hand, Pierre Cardina and Emanuel Ungaro stuck with skirts hitting three and four inches above the knees.

Paris designers seem less interested in hemlines and more in the look of being a woman.

To help achieve this look of being a woman, fashion experts predict that jewels, fake gold, and silver will be the fashion standard for night-time apparel.

Futhermore, it is predicted that fall jewelry will be the hit of the season—"swingy by day and sweet by night". Earrings will be the most dramatic. They will come in all sorts of wild, wild, bold, bold styles ranging from geometrics to the free forms. Wood, plastics, and papier-maché are favorites used in daytime earrings, whereas, rhinestones and crystals in danity patterns that touch the shoulders are used for the evening ones.

Necklaces, bracelets, and pins will also be "in". Necklines in chokers or magnificent chains and ropes of multicolored stones will be most popular. Papier-maché bracelets and pins in bold links and wide gold chains with chunky shaped stones wil be a "must" for the fashionable woman.

President Davis Elected to Board CEMREL

Walter S. Davis, university president, has been elected to the permanent board of directors of the Central Midwestern Regional Educational Laboratory, Inc. (CEMREL), according to an announcement made by Wade M. Robinson, executive director. Dr. Davis was installed at the annual board of directors meeting in St. Louis on October 5, 1966.

CEMREL, an independent non-profit corporation, is one of several similar organizations set up across the nation to initiate, support and encourage research on the educational process and to reduce the time interval between discoveries and their application to the public and private classrooms of the region. While CEMREL was established for the purpose of starting a comprehensive research and development program of its own geared to the needs of the area, it will, at the same time, seek to complement, reinforce, and extend the best work of the educational institutions in its region.

Chartered in November, 1965, supported initially by title IV of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, CEMREL, which is independently governed by its board of directors from a four-state area, is one of 12 similar non-profit laboratories presently operating. Another seven are in the developmental stage. CEMREL also has funds from private sources.

TIGER'S DEN

Tigers Roll On, 15 Straight

By FELIX R. MATLOCK, JR.

Coach John Merritt and his football Tigers made a stunning 1966 debut by crushing North Carolina A & T 55-0 before an estimated crowd of 5,000 fans.

The Tigers rolled up an awesome 432 yards with junior quarterback Eldridge Dickey holding the reins into the early part of the third quarter chalking up a 27-0 lead. Dickey passed for one touchdown, ran for another and kicked an extra point.

The big blue leaped to an early lead in the first quarter moving 49 yards with Dickey going in from the one yard line. Roy Meneese, Tiger place kicker, converted the extra point making it 7-0.

The first quarter ended 7-0 in what seemed to be a close contest. Then, the Tigers moved 90 yards in eight plays with halfback Gene Bowens ripping off 36 yards for the touchdown and accounting for 151 yards in 18 carries. Late in the second quarter, halfback Bill Tucker accounted for another score on a one yard run, ending the half 20-0.

The A & T Aggies threatened in the first quarter and again in the third quarter but the tough Tiger defense, which limited the Aggies to a minus 31 yards rushing and 73 yards passing, stopped them with key interceptions twice on the one yard line.

Late in the third period the reserves moved in to score 28 points with Elijah Bossie at quarterback, placing the game completely out of reach.

Next team on the Tiger menu is FAMU, October 22.

ROTC

fering a Flight Instruction program to cadets who desire to become Air Force pilots and who are physically qualified. Those who satisfactorily complete the program will receive private pilots license.

Five cadets are also receiving full Air Force scholarships. These cadets are:

WILLIAM L. BROWN
OTIS L. CLEVELAND
H. S. McCLELLAN, JR.
WINSTON SUIVEY

ROTC scholarships pay the university cadets tuition, books, laboratory expenses and incidental fees. In addition, they receive $50 per month in pay.

Competition is keen for entry into the Professional Officer course (POC). Only limited slots are available. A cadet must satisfactorily complete freshmen and sophomore ROTC in order to enroll in the POC. Also, a cadet must pass a physical examination, have a 2.00 grade point average and pass the Air Force Officer Qualification test.

Tennessee State university cadets, who complete the AFROTC program and receive their college degrees, will be commissioned Second Lieutenants in the United States Air Force.

Aim for the most vulnerable spots—the Adam's apple or the midriff with a fist, the groin with a knee. A high heel jammed into his instep also has been found effective.

Finally, don't be afraid to call the police any time you feel you are in danger. They won't think you're a "Nervous Nellie" if it's a false alarm.

"Any policeman would tell a woman she did the right thing in calling him," Capt. Brown said. "It's better for her to risk feeling a little embarrassed than to get killed."

FIRST LYCEUM ATTRACTION

By LA MONA PRINCE

Beginning at 8:15 p.m. in Kean hall on October 22 the university will present its first Lyceum series. Six superb artists outline the rare romantic program in the persons of duo-pianists, Eden & Tamir and The Camerata Chamber singers with Abraham Kaplan, Artistic director.

Winning a host of fans in their previous tours, Eden & Tamir rank highly according to dream reviews of The New York Times ("Flawless ensemble, brilliant pianism"). Under the sole direction of one of New York's most sought-after conductors, The Camerata Chamber singers grew out of The Camerata singers. As an ensemble of four choice singers (soprano, mezzo, tenor, and baritone), the newly christened group will perform Brahms Liebeslieder waltzes. The admission for reserved seats is $2.00; general admission: $1.00; for students: I.D. Card.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Way back in 1953 I started writing this column about campus life. Today, a full 13 years later, I am still writing this column, for my interest in undergraduates is as keen and lively as ever. This is called "arrested development."

But where else can a writer find a subject as fascinating as the American campus? Where else are minds so nettled, bodies so roiled, psyches so unglued?

Right now, for example, though the new school year has just begun, you've already encountered the following disasters:

1. You hate your teachers.
2. You hate your courses.
3. You hate your room-mates.
4. You have no time to study.
5. You have no place to study.

Friends, let us, without despair, examine your problems one by one.

1. You hate your teachers. For shame, friends! Try looking at things their way. Take your English teacher, for instance. Here's a man who is one of the world's authorities on Robert Browning, yet he wears $30 tweeds and a pre-war necktie while his brother Sam, a high school dropout, earns 70 thou a year in aluminum siding. Is it so hard to understand why he writes "F" on top of your themes and "Eeeyich!" in the margin? Instead of hating him, should you not admire his dedication to scholarship, his disdain for the blandishments of commerce? Of course you should. You may flunk, but Pippa passes.

2. You hate your courses. You say, for example, that you don't see the use of studying Macbeth when you are majoring in veterinary medicine. You're wrong, friends. Believe me, some day when you are running a busy kennel, you'll be mighty glad you learned "Out, damned Spot!"

3. You hate your room-mates. This is, unquestionably, a big problem—in fact, the second biggest problem on American campuses. (The first biggest, of course, is on which side of your mortar board do you dangle the tassel at Commencement?) But there is an answer to the roommate problem: keep changing room-mates. The optimum interval, I have found, is every four hours.

4. You have no time to study. Friends, I'm glad to report there is a simple way to find extra time in your busy schedule. All you have to do is buy some Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades. Then you won't be wasting precious hours hacking away with inferior blades, mangling your face again and again in a tedious, feckless effort to winnow your whiskers. Personna shaves you quickly and slickly, easily and breezily, hacklessly, scrapelessly, tuglessly, nicklessly, scratchlessly, matchlessly. Furthermore, Personna Blades last and last. Moreover, they are available both in double-edge and Injector style. And, as if this weren't enough, Personna is now offering you a chance to grab a fistful of $100 bills. The Personna Super Stainless Steel Sweepstakes is off and running! You can win $10,000 and even more. Get over to your Personna dealer for details and an entry blank. Don't just stand there!

5. You have no place to study. This is a thorny one, I'll admit, what with the library so jammed and the dorms so noisy. But with a little ingenuity, you can still find a quiet, deserted spot—like the ticket office of the lacrosse team. Or a testimonial dinner for the dean. Or the nearest recruiting station.

You see, friends? When you've got a problem, don't lie down and quit. Attack! Remember: America did not become the world's greatest producer of milk solids and sorghum by running away from a fight!
